Henkel Completes New College Library

*“Henkel and TSP’s teamwork delivered a great looking library that is enjoyable for the students, highly functional, and all within Waldorf’s financial and scheduling constraints.
We are very pleased.”*

Waldorf College*

Henkel Construction Company recently completed Waldorf College’s newest addition in Forest City, Iowa. Waldorf’s new two-story library facility was opened to students for the 05’-06’ school year and has received a very warm reception.

Funds for the new library were graciously donated to Waldorf by the John K. and Luise V. Hanson Foundation. Located southwest of Thorson Hall and what will soon become Waldorf’s main entry point, the new library has become a hub of activity. It houses an upscale coffee shop which became an immediate social gathering point, and its central location makes it an ideal waypoint for study between classes.

The new facility accomplishes several objectives. It provides a much more comfortable learning and study environment with significantly better lighting, environmental systems, and a fully wireless communication and data network which allows students to study and communicate via the web from anywhere in or near the building. There is also room for more references, group meeting space, 2 classrooms, archives, and plenty of comfortable study space.

Henkel was hired very early in the process to team with TSP Architects and Engineers, MS&R Library Consultants, and Mr. Bob Johnson, Special Assistant to the President for Campus Living. The team worked closely together to create a facility that accomplished Waldorf College’s goals in a form that was financially feasible and architecturally pleasing.

Bob Johnson said, “Henkel and TSP’s teamwork delivered a great looking library that is enjoyable for the students, highly functional, and all within Waldorf’s financial and scheduling constraints. We are very pleased.”
